THE DEEDS OF A PHILANTHROPIST.

Isaac V. Williamson will live in history as one of the greatest philanthropists of the world. During his life, it is estimated, he gave away $5,000,000 in charity, and did it so quietly that few besides himself and the recipients knew it—so quietly, indeed, that when, in the closing months of his life, he dedicated other millions, as yet unestimated, to found a school for poor boys, it was generally supposed to be the freak of a rich and childless old man. It was only when all the facts came out that people knew that the magnificent gift was the culmination of a life of charity, and had been the giver's cherished dream for many years.—Philadelphia Enquirer.

There is something magnificient in the benefactions of Mr. Williamson. He may not have been wise in being pernickity in his personal affairs, and in not establishing for himself a home that would have added so much more of comfort and personal influence to his life. He was by nature a cold man, and always hedged himself about with a seclusion that no man or woman was ever able to break down. But while these personal traits were against him, he quietly gave alms after the true scriptural spirit, and his left hand never knew what his right hand was doing for charity. As cold as Mr. Williamson was in his intercourse with men, he had a tender heart and a warm affection for the poor. He thought he could ill afford to pay fifteen dollars for a suit of clothes for himself, but he could give with pleasure ten thousand dollars for the relief of poor people. However much this way of doing things may be unlike the business ways of the world, there is nevertheless a deep touch of humanity about it that makes Mr. Williamson one of the greatest philanthropists of the time.

The United States has had two great philanthropists—Iraida V. Williamson and George Peabody. Mr. Peabody, however, during the latter part of his life lived in London. His benefactions reached about six millions; but Mr. Williamson's will go beyond that, for he gives five millions to one institution—the Williamson free school of mechanical trades. It is refreshing to be called upon to make note of such unselfish and illustrious deeds as Mr. Williamson performed. He worked more for others than for himself. He showed a more philanthropic spirit, in his fifteen millions than any other millionaire in the country.

THE TROUBLE IN NEW YORK.

A report comes from Washington that President Harrison has already run against a stag in New York politics. All presidents have had the same ill-luck with the political greed of party leaders in that state. Every republican president from Lincoln to Harrison, and Grover Cleveland, a democrat, has been cursed with party contentions in that state. These contentions cost Garfield his life, and drove Conkling from the senate. President Arthur, a man of consummate skill in dealing with tactical forces, met the difficulty as no other president before him had ever done; and for a time there was republican harmony in New York.

But there is a different condition of things now. There is one faction that is bound to either rule or ruin. At the head of this faction is Thomas C. Platt, one of the smallest politicians in that state. He is a professional disturber of political peace: He is the "Me-Too" of New York politics. He is determined to give Harrison all the trouble he can create. He wanted a cabinet position, and Harrison could not give it to him. There was a feeling at the white house that Platt should have the chairmanship of the port, but he says he won't take it nor let anyone else take it that belongs to the Warner Miller faction. Platt is determined to fight against the appointment of any one that does not belong to his clique. He is stubborn in this, and does not care how much trouble he heaps upon President Harrison, better does he care how much he weakens the party in New York.

Whether this condition of things worries President Harrison or not is not the dispatches do not say. It is not likely that he can be driven or cajoled by a man like Platt, but whether he will have the surpassing ability to manage the contending republican forces in New York state, that President Arthur displayed, can only be conjectured. It is earnestly hoped that he will be equal to the emergency.

It is reported from Madison that those who went to Washington to attend the inauguration of Harrison, believe that Secretary Russek will not appoint a Wisconsin man assistant secretary of his department. A number of names are being talked of as likely to receive the appointment, most prominent among them being those of ex-Governor Turner, of Nebraska; I. S. Woodward, secretary of agriculture of New York state; and J. H. Hale, master of the state grange of Connecticut. Any of these gentlemen would make a thoroughly efficient assistant and second the secretary's efforts in the most satisfactory manner. With regard to the Wisconsin appointments to be made in the department nothing will be decided before next week, when Secretary Russek is expected to make a short visit to the state, and it is more than probable that he will then announce his selections.

The spirit of the war against railways is pretty forcibly illustrated by the following notes from Mr. A. V. H. Carpenter, of Milwaukee, to the editor of the Sentinel:

MILWAUKEE, Wis., March 8.—In your issue of this morning appears a letter from Mr. E. P. Bacon, of this city, in which the following passage occurs: "If such legislation is not enacted at this session of the legislature, or equally favorable rates are not voluntarily accorded to the people by the railroad companies, a renewal of the movement may be expected at the next session of the legislature with accumulated force," referring to the Taylor bill now before the senate, to use a term applied by a person signing himself "An American citizen" on that subject. This shows a perseverance on the part of Mr. Bacon and his co-advisors, approaching at least, that of the general commanding the defeated forces opposed to the archangel Michael in the war in heaven, as graphically depicted by Milton in his "Paradise Lost" in the following language:

"All is not lost; the unconquerable will,
The courage never to submit or yield."

So it is fair to presume that the people must be made to see that they are wronged by the railroads, whether they feel it or not.

There is no doubt the spirit of the Banconian enemies of railways is much like the opposing forces to Archangel Michael. But, it would seem to a man of common business sense, that the people cannot be made to see that they are wronged by railways when they cannot feel it. There is too much intelligence among the people in this state to suffer them to be duped or blinded by misguided and wrong-headed men.

The St. Louis Republic flings aside the veil of futurity, and remarks: "On March 4, 1889, Benjamin Harrison and Levi Parsons Morton were sworn in as president and vice president of the United States. On March 4, 1893, they will be succeeded by John McCouley Palmer and William Collins Whitney, if the democratic party is wise and brave enough to deserve leadership that will mean victory. With Illinois gained and New York kept, the party of Thomas Jefferson, Andrew Jackson, and Grover Cleveland will have before it a future of usefulness as magnificent as the record of its past." That "magnificent record of the past" is pretty good, for a joke. It would be difficult to name a political party whose pathway shows more graves filled with dead promises and blasted hopes than that of the democratic party. Its course is full of wrecks.

One of the most whimsical of strikes reported from Hainsport, New Jersey, where the Columbia iron works have been closed by reason of the rebellion of the employee against an order that they should wear boots. The boots were a means of protection which it would be naturally supposed they would earnestly desire, since those who did not wear them frequently suffered from burns caused by the molten metal. The proprietors do not appear to have been at all unreasonable, since they offered to furnish boots free to those unable to buy them. This sort of a strike is not at all surprising, notwithstanding the frivolousness of the grounds on which it was made. As a rule, these strikes are ordered by men who haven't intelligence enough to see the folly of marring the nose to spite the face.

The weather continues very good under the republican administration. This is a disappointment to the republicans.

Before Mr. Cleveland has warned his law office chair the New York Herald devotes a page to the publication of the opinions of representative New Yorkers upon the questions of tariff reform and national party leadership. Results are given as follows: In doubt as to choice, 52; for Hill, 72; Cleveland, 34; Randal, 16; Whitney, 12.

There does not seem to be any indication that Simon Cameron will depart this life during this century. He was 90 years old last week, and is still strong and healthy. Like Susan B. Anthony, he is here to stay.

The correct way is to buy goods from the manufacturer when possible. The Elkhart Carriage and Harness Manufacturing Co. of Elkhart, Indiana, have no agents. They make first-class goods, ship anywhere, privilege to examine. See advertisement.

Effects of heavy hair.
"I do not believe that heavy hair takes away strength," said a leading physician the other day. "Heavy hair may be burdensome to weak people by its weight in the same way that a heavy hat or bonnet might be. Its growth is only weakening in the same sense that all growth may be, and the growth is ordinarily compensated for by food. In any event, there is no way of regarding the growth of the hair. Cutting only weakens it, but it may relieve the sense of weight."

"We should do nothing for the hair of a child beyond keeping the head clean. Many children are extremely slow in getting hair, but it comes ultimately, and so far as observation is an authority, just as abundantly as in other children. The growth and development of children is very often fitful and uneven, one part growing seemingly at the expense of another for the time being."

In Wappinger's Falls is a sago palm with a history. It was grown at Mount Vernon by George Washington; was brought from there to New York by a Van Rensselaer, and put in Nibl's garden when that resort was first opened; thence it was sent to Clinton Point, the Van Rensselaer homestead; Edward Duyckinck cared for it, when eventually the plant was given. It afterward became the property of the present owner, John M. Gorring. The plant is fully one hundred and fifty years old, stands ten feet high, and weighs 400 pounds.

THE CRIMINAL RECORD.

WORK OF WHITE CAPS IN VIRGINIA.

Tourists Murdered in the Yellowstone Region—Wife Murder and Suicide—Other Criminal Matters.

RICHMOND, Va., March 11.—C. G. Christian and J. Hall Moore, who had been attending a meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association in this city, were driving to their homes in Henry county Saturday night, and when about a mile from the city limits were attacked and severely beaten by a party of White Caps. They wore white gowns and white caps. The youth jumped out and seized with two of the White Caps and a desperate struggle took place. Moore and Christian were thrown to the ground, pistols were pointed at their heads, and after being tied they were severely beaten with sticks. The White Caps then left the two men still bound and fired pistols at them as they departed. The following notice required by one of the White Caps:

"Your conduct of late has been such that the laws of our organization compel us to take some steps toward correcting your morals. Our order is one that extends from the Atlantic to the Pacific, from Maine to Mexico. Our principal object is to thoroughly purify the morals of the young men throughout the country. We demand that you belong to a higher standard. It is useless to us to make any charge as your own conscience is sufficient. It is enough to say that if you are caught out of your room after 10 o'clock at night you will be severely dealt with."

SLAIN IN YELLOWSTONE PARK.

Five Rich French Tourists Murdered—Their Guide Under Suspicion.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., March 11.—It is reported from Canyon City, on the edge of Yellowstone park, that five French tourists, four men and one woman, were slain by Indians.

Ferry, the guide of the party, was captured by Indians.

Ferry had been shot in the head and probably died. McDonald has had much trouble and several rows with his employees of late. No arrests have been made.

A Probable Murder.

LIMA, Ohio, March 11.—Frank McClelland was fatally hurt to day by John Shaefer, who threw a stone at him as he was driving along Pearl street. The stone hit McClelland on the cheek, cutting a long, deep gash, exposing the jaw bone and knocking him from the seat to the ground. He fell on his head and was rendered insensible, and is still unconscious. The cause of Shaefer's assault is unknown. McClelland will die.

FIVE YEARS FOR ATTEMPTED WIFE MURDER.

WEST SUPERIOR, Wis., March 11.—Richard Collins, who was convicted in the Circuit court of assault with intent to kill his wife last August, was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary. Collins was at one time a police officer of Superior and was considered a shrewd detective. He is an old resident of Superior and is related to a number of families of wealth and high social standing.

FOOTWEAR EXTRADITED.

FARGO, D. T., March 11.—Gillette, who is implicated in numerous forgeries in the United States and Canada and who has been in jail here for the past two months pending extradition proceedings was surrendered to the Canadian authorities last night. Gillette's known forgeries amount to nearly $100,000.

A Confidence-Man Arrested.

MONTRAL, March 11.—James Taylor, one of the most successful American crooks that has ever come to Canada from the United States, has been arrested. Taylor has operated in nearly every state of the Union, and has managed to gather about $60,000.

STRONGLY SUSPECTED OF THE MURDER.

NEW YORK, March 11.—William Kralish, a 17-year-old boy, suspected of complicity of the murder of Drug Clerk Wechsberg Thursday, has been arrested on a charge of homicide. Certain indications lead the police to believe the boy is crazy.

INDIANA LEGISLATURE.

Summary of the Work of an Extraordinary Session.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 11.—With Saturday night's adjournment the fifty-sixth session of the Indiana General Assembly terminated. The Legislature met Monday and adjourned sine die, but no bills were passed—a constitutional provision forbidding the sending of bills to the Governor for three days of the close of the session. The most important bill passed, perhaps, is one appointing five commissioners who are to act as assistants to the judges of the Supreme court. That court, as a result of the November election, now consists of four Republicans and one Democrat. The bill passed by the Legislature was vetoed by the Governor and promptly passed over his veto, provided for five commissioners, and the Legislature chose five Democrats to fill these places. The constitution provides that all commissions must be signed by the Governor and sealed with the great seal of the State. The majority of the Legislature, foreseeing that the Governor might refuse to issue these commissions, inserted in the law a clause providing that in case of his refusal the certificates signed by the Speaker of the House and the secretary of the Senate should be sufficient authority for the bearers to act as commissioners. The Governor refused to issue the certificates, whereupon the commissioners took out the certificates provided by the act and reported to the Chief Justice of the Supreme court. The Chief Justice declined to accept the certificates as evidence that the commissioners were duly authorized to act, and Gov. Hoye at once procured an injunction restraining the clerk of the Supreme court from issuing the books, papers, etc., necessary to the prosecution of their work. One point on which the commissioners relied strongly is the provision of the act which defines their duties as being ministerial. They are simply to prepare opinions on cases submitted to them, but will have no voice in deciding whether opinions so prepared shall be promulgated as decisions of the Supreme Court. This case is now pending before the Supreme Court, which importance is attached to the final result for the reason that it will have a bearing on much of the other legislation of the session.

Other bills take from the Governor the appointing of the State health board, State geologist, coal mine inspectors, oil inspectors, etc. The trustees of benevolent and penal institutions have for many years been selected by the legislative branch of the government, but Gov. Hoye claims the appointment of these to be within the power of the executive and a legal contest on this point will also follow. The mayor and city authorities of Indianapolis will make a legal fight in the courts over the bill depriving the council and aldermen of the control of city affairs. Among the notable laws enacted by the Assembly and approved by the Governor was an election law embodying the salient features of the Australian system and a measure providing for the purchase of school books in quantity from the lowest and best bidder, these books to be supplied to pupils at cost.

ASSAULTED A NEWSPAPER MAN.

SACRAMENTO, Calif., March 11.—A frightful double tragedy occurred just before noon Sunday at 3 Francis street. The occupants of the house were Joseph Russell and his wife and two children, aged 9 and 12 years. It is supposed Russell and his wife had an altercation in the kitchen about a young man who had recently boarded with them. Russell produced a revolver and shot her in the back of the head. The woman ran out doors and started for a neighbor's, but in scaling a fence she fell to the ground dead. Russell was found on the kitchen floor dead with a bullet in his heart. The children were up-stairs during the shooting and in their alarm escaped from a second-story window. Neither the murdered woman nor the suicide was heard to utter a word after the shooting, and no writing of any kind was left behind to explain the real cause of the tragedy. Russell was 42 years old and his wife 32.

NO ATTEMPT WILL BE MADE TO REACH THE SCENE OF THE MURDER.

The scene of the murder for some weeks yet. The tourists' mules, which were stampeded, may possibly prove a clew to the murderers. The mules were branded, and unless the brands were altered, they will be found.

TERRIBLE DOUBLE TRAGEDY.

AN AUBURN, Mass.—Kills His Wife and Then Takes His Own Life.

AUBURN, N. Y., March 11.—A frightful double tragedy occurred just before noon Sunday at 3 Francis street. DICK TOWNSHEND DEAD.

THE ILLINOIS REPRESENTATIVE PASSES AWAY.

An Aggravated Case of Pneumonia the Cause—Sketch of His Career—Washington News.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Representative Richard Townsend of Illinois died about noon Saturday.

Religious services will be held over the remains of the late Representative Townsend in the parlor of the Riggs house.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—The sick Congressman—Buchanan of New Jersey, Spangler of New York, and Lee of Virginia—are all reported to be improved, and it is said that none of them are in immediate danger.

EXECUTIONS BY ELECTRICITY.

Experiments to Be Made on Calves by Prison Superintendents.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 11.—Legislation for the carrying out of the scheme to kill murderers by electricity has been introduced, for the present, at any rate, by the Governor's approval of the bill appropriating $10,000 to prepare and set up in the State the necessary apparatus for the execution of死刑犯 in such cases. Next week, at some time and place yet to be fixed, practical work, so to speak, will be begun upon calves, and the prison officials under whose direction the experiments are to be made are confident that they will have apparatus perfected up to the required point. The experiments will be made by Harold P. Brown, an electrical engineer of the State Prison, and the party witnessing them will include the State Prison Superintendent Lathrop, C. K. Becker, assistant superintendent, Warden Brush of Sing Sing, and the heads of the other State prisons. Governor Hill is said to have suggested that the experiments should be made in private, and an attempt will be made to carry out that idea. Besides the prison officials, however, several doctors will be present, and the results of the calves experimented with will be dissected to determine the effects produced by the shock upon the tissues of the brain and the muscles.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, WASHINGTON—Dear Mrs. Townsend: I was very much shocked by the sudden death of your husband. Your grief is too great to approach with words. Accept these flowers with my heartfelt sympathy. The President desires to add his sympathy with mine. Sincerely yours,

"CARRIE S. HARRISON."

R. W. Townsend, or "Dick" Townsend, as he was familiarly called, was born in Prince George's county, Maryland, April 30, 1840. He went to Washington city when 10 years of age, and was there educated. He removed to Illinois in 1865, and settled with Dr. T. R. Tracy of McLeansborough, where he was a student of the Gallatin National bank.

Mr. Townsend was a member of the Democratic State Central committee of Illinois in 1864, '65, '67, '74, and '75; was a delegate to the National Democratic convention at Baltimore in 1868; was elected to the XVIth, XLVth, XLVIth, XLVIIth, and LXth Congresses, and was last re-elected to the List.

In the House Mr. Townsend was pertinacious and stuck to his purposes with a stubbornness that was the stuff of a proverb, yet no one questioned his fair faithfulness.

He was a ready debater and few of his colleagues cared to antagonize him when he was on the alert. He was likewise a careful thinker and had special talent for compilation and condensation of facts and figures. To Mr. Townsend's well-directed and intelligent efforts the newspaper press are largely indebted for the passage of the act of 1863 reducing postage on second-class matter from 3 to 1 cent a pound. He was a hard worker and one of the leading members of the House.

OBITUARY.

CYRUS LEONARD.

In the death of Cyrus Leonard, of the town of Harmony, the community in which he lived loses a valued and highly respected citizen. Mr. Leonard died last evening at his home in Harmony, where he had resided many years, aged 55 years, after a brief illness of pneumonia. Funeral services will be held under the direction of the Odd Fellows, of which he was a member, on Wednesday. The interment will probably take place at Milton.

You can't afford to laugh, dear girls. Unless your teeth are white as pearls, unless your lips are red as roses, and unless your eyes are bright as diamonds, you cannot supply this want. But through the use of SOZOZONT!

Miss Maggie Crook left last evening for Benson, Minnesota, to assist in caring for her sister's husband, Mr. Tony Brown. Mr. Brown is reported very dangerously sick, from blood poisoning.

The "Night Owls" Waltzing Club will give an invitation masquerade at the Light Infantry Armory on Thursday evening, March 21. Members can obtain invitations from the committee.

The concert notice in this issue will be the second of the series to be given at the First M. E. church, Wednesday March 13th. The object is a worthy one, so let there be a full attendance.

With his restaurant, "The Seaside," much improved, and with a faculty not often seen, it is not surprising that Al. Smith should find his business increasing steadily. The prosperity is well deserved.

A fine line of gold and silver bracelets and scarf pins has just been received by A. F. Hall & Co., the reliable jewelers. The lot includes the very latest New York styles and they will be pleased to show them to all interested.

The orchestra connected with the Lyceum Specialty Co., which plays for the benefit of Manager Brown at Lappin's hall this evening, furnished most excellent music for a dancing party at Cannon's hall on Saturday evening. The orchestra, like the company are first class artists, and will not fail to please the public.

Smith & Anderson's orchestra appears to be kept pretty busy notwithstanding the leaner season, the following being the engagements for the present week:—Baraboo, March 11th; Waupaca March 13th; Evansville, March 14th; Marion March 15th; Odd Fellows, March 16; Woodstock, March 18th. Other towns to hear from.

The funeral of little Johnny, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Leahy, was held from St. Patrick's church Sunday afternoon at two o'clock. The attendance of friends was very large, and at the conclusion of the services by the Rev. Father McGinnity, the remains were conveyed to Mount Olivet cemetery, followed by a long line of friends of the bereaved family.

The union services at the Baptist church continue with growing interest. Last evening Lieut. Layery addressed a very full house on the subject of "Hidden Lives." During the day and evening a considerable number of new cases of awakening and inquiry came to the knowledge of the pastor and church, and the work seems to be moving on in a very gratifying way. There will be meetings every afternoon at 3:00 o'clock, and every evening this week at 7:30, except Saturday. All are cordially invited.

Married, by W. F. Brown, at his residence in Janesville, Wisconsin, March 6, 1889, Mr. Arthur O. Allen, of Koshkonong, and Miss Hannan J. Hopper. They started their new life with a bright day, and their friends and relatives wish them many happy returns.

How Intelligent Women Decide.

When the question has to be met to what is the best course to adopt to secure a safe, safe and agreeable remedy for those organic diseases and weaknesses which afflict the female sex, there is but one wise decision, viz., a course of self-treatment.

It is an infallible specific for periodical pains, mischievous external inflammation, and of all the functional disorders that render the lives of so many women miserable and joyless. The secret of its success lies in the hands of those whom she met here, and all are sure that an institution such as Janesville requires would be a success in her hands.

Underpinning of Houses.

The walls under houses and barns which they have been built several years, always need some attention on the approach of winter. On climate so moist as fall and so cold as winter, there must be a hawk with a sharp beak. Mortar being largely composed of lime readily absorbs dampness and freezing when moist disintegrates it.

It mitigates the infirmities of age, hastens convalescence, and prevents exposure and exhaustion. Persons of sedentary habits and laborious occupations will find it an ever useful tonic.

LOST.—We have never lost a customer who has used our genuine calf bolt, sold at the un-heard of price of $2.40. We warrant every pair to wear equal to any $3 boot on the market. Come in and look, we will save you money.
